PLAYING NICE: Healthy Friendships (Elementary School)

This workshop reviews healthy and unhealthy friendship characteristics both on and off the playground for younger youth, as well as give distinct descriptions of bullying which occurs both online and offline. Parents during this workshop will receive tips on how they can talk to their children about positive friendships and boundaries. It is important for parents and/or guardians and their children to understand healthy friendships, as it is very beneficial and informative in molding children into who they are. Additionally, playing nice and encouraging healthy friendships will be easy for children and their parents to recognize when they have a friend who is behaving poorly to them. In a case where a child is involved with a bad friend, this workshop will inform parents of what they can do and the resources they can use.

Topics to be discussed in the Playing Nice workshop:

- What Healthy Friendships look like
- What Unhealthy Friendships look like
- How we can practice being good friends to others
- Explore the different types of bullying and abuse
- What we can do if someone is behaving like a bad friend
- When and Where we can get help
- How we can help our friends who find themselves in unhealthy friendships
